

Scottish Wedding Show 2023: All the details including how to get there and how to buy last minute tickets

The event is back and it's bigger than ever before as Glasgow gets ready to host the biggest wedding exhibition in Scotland. We have all the details for the event that you need

 A catwalk will take place at the event which is the largest wedding show in Scotland. (Image: Scottishweddingshow)

Scotland's biggest wedding show is on again this weekend as thousands of couples get set to descend on Glasgow with hopes of inspiration ahead of the big day. More than 200 exhibitors and suppliers will be on hand at the event with anything brides and grooms can think taken care of.

On show across the two-day event will be bands who will be performing in a showcase, a catwalk with bridal dresses, bridesmaid dresses and kilts and wedding venue reps will also be on hand for those who are just taking the first step in their plans.

Organiser, Tsitsi Lynn Makuni, described the event as a one-stop destination with every need, big or small, covered for the happy couples. She added that this year's event is adding a whole host of new suppliers as well as ones that are familiar faces at the show.

For anyone looking to go, keep reading for all the details.

When and where is the event?

The Scottish Wedding Show 2023 is on Saturday and Sunday October 14/15 and is being held at the SEC in Glasgow.

How do I get there?

The easiest way to get there would be to drive with parking available nearby in a multi-story car park that you will have to pay for. Alternatively, you can get a train to Exhibition Centre from Glasgow Central and then walk for a couple of minutes to get there.

Can I still get tickets?

There are still tickets available at thescottishweddingshow.com and are priced at £17 per person if bought in advance. If you turn up on the day, it will be £19. A VIP ticket for £30 gets you a glass of bubbly as well as a seat in first two rows of the catwalk. Children go free.