WITH the easing of Covid rules allowing weddings to get back to near normality, brides and grooms can dream big again.

And there was plenty of help on hand at the weekend, with the return after two years of the Scottish Wedding Show.

Thousands attended the Scottish Event Campus in Glasgow to see what's on offer, with a catwalk show highlighting the latest wedding dress creations.

The stars of this year's exhibition were Caledonia Alpacas, which have become popular novelty guests at weddings. They can provide a petting station for guests or even act as ringbearers.

The animals featured in the event's Field of Dreams area, for couples choosing to marry outdoors.
